The Lily Confidante. The Dily Confidence.

There's a maiden, and her name is—
Hist! was that a rose-leaf fell?

Bee, the rose is listening, Lily,
And the rose may tell.

Lily-browed, and lily-hearted, She is very dear to me; Lovely? Yes, if being lovely 1s-resembling thee.

Laughing girl and thoughtful woman, I am puzzled how to woo— Shall I praise or pique her, Lily? Tell me what to do,

"Silly lover, if thy Lily Like her sister lilles be, Thou must woo, if thou wouldst wear her, With a simple plea.

'As thou talkest at the fireside, With the little children by— As thou prayest in the darkness, When thy God is nigh—

"With a speech as chaste and gentle, And such meanings as become Ear of child, or are of angel, Speak, or then be dumb.

"Woo her thus, and she shall give thee Of her the sinless whole;
All the girl within her boson
And her woman's soul."

MARY DONNELLY.

By WILLIAM ALLINGHAM.

H! lovely Mary Donnelly, 'tis you I love the best!

If fifty girls were round you I'd hardly see the rest;

Be what it may the time o' day, the place be where it will, Sweet looks o' Mary Donnelly, they bloom before me still.

Her eyes, like mountain water that's flowing on a rock, How clear they are, how dark they are! they give me many a shock; Red rowans warm in sunshine and wetted with a show'r, Could ne'er express the charming lip that has me in its pow'r.

Her nose is straight and handsome, her eyebrows lifted up Her chin is very neat and pert, and smooth like a china cup; Her hair's the brag of Ireland, so weighty and so fine. It's rolling down upon her neck and gather'd in a twine. The dance o' last Whit-Monday night exceeded all before,

No pretty girl for miles about was missing from the floor; But Mary kept the belt o' love, and oh! but she was gay; She danced a jig, she sang a song, that took my heart away. When she stood up for dancing her steps were so complete The music nearly kill'd itself to listen to her feet; The fiddler moan'd his blindness, he heard her so much praised.

But bless'd his luck to not be deaf when once her voice she raised. And evermore I'm whistling or lilting what you sung, Your smile is always in my heart, your name beside my tongue; But you've as many sweethearts as you'd count on both your hands,

And for myself there's not a thumb or little finger stands. 'Tis you're the flower o' womankind in country or in town; The higher I exalt you the lower I'm cast down.

If some great lord should come this way and see your beauty bright, And you to be his lady, I'd own it was but right.

might we live together in a lofty palace hall Where joyful music rises and where scarlet curtains fall; Oh! might we live together in a cottage mean and small, With sods o' grass the only roof and mud the only wall.

Oh! lovely Mary Donnelly, your beauty's my distress It's far too beauteous to be mine, but I'll never wish it less, The proudest place would fit your face, and I am poor and low; But blessings be about you,dear , wherever you may go!

BROUGHT COLD WEATHER Mr. Blizzard's Visit Here Follow-

Mr. Blizzard's Visit Here Followed Quikly By Snow.

It is considered as something of a conincidence that just preceding the snow storm here on Tuesday morning a Mr. Blizzard, of Philadelphia, registered at the Richmond Hotel. Indeed, the might clerk who was on duty when the man with a cold name registered, declares that he expected a sudden full of the temperature, and as soon as Mr. Blizzard laid down the pen with which he had written his name it commenced snowing in great shape.

To make the story complete, it may be stated that the snow continued to fall as long as Mr. Blizzard remained in the city, and when he left it sopped. He was only here for a few hours between trains.
